LIVED EXPERIENCE PRESENTER

Azelene Williams – domestic violence survivor

Azelene experienced years of physical and emotional abuse in her first relationship as a teenager growing up in South Africa. She emerged a stronger person and went on to become a qualified Social Worker and Counsellor.

Her life's ambition as a published author and domestic violence advocate is to have a positive impact on today's and future generations.

Azelene is an engaging presenter, sharing her lived experience with schools, workplaces and community groups. Throughout the session Azelene draws on her personal experience to illustrate the key concepts of (un)healthy relationships including gender and social norms, the cycle of violence, signs of unhealthy relationships, consent and coercion, the importance of networks and persistence.
